Fully agree and share the fascination for the questions you are raising. As you say, even if we had perfect diagnosis of all lesions, we would not know which treatment to prefer. Gives me the freedom to individualize approach, not just FFR +/- And ASA, statin, training...

Thanks to all the investigators and to #EuKon #Medis and #SMT for the incredible two days of @theFIRE_trial and #QFR course in Siracusa! Really the best possible start for our adventure. #SicilyisONFIRE! Next step #SpaelsONFIRE! Stay tuned. @JEscaned @vegutbanes @ignamatsant

True...but actually we dont have data concerning these "group" of patients (elderly with multivessels diseases)

The majority of bystander lesions that cause future cv events are not the "functionally" significant ones. average % of lesions that caused future acs was 30% in @GreggWStone prospect trial nejm.org/doi/full/10.1016/j.jacc.2018.08.010... more predictive ivus parameters than PW

So true! We tried to do so (even though Cardiology journals were not so interested in it...) ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pubmed/3107516...
